Let the Graduation Stockings Be of Silk

When the graduates-to-be see the beginning of the end of school life their thoughts turn to fitting apparel for commencement—and to be "fit," garments must be dainty and fresh as June itself.

It is natural then that silk stockings should be one of the items marked "necessaries."

Our stocking department is very complete and you will find:

Silk foot stockings in white, pink, sky, tan, taupe and black for 30c a pair.

Pure thread silk stockings in white, black and all colors at $1.00 a pair and up.

A complete line of Kayser and McCallum silk stockings—none better—all colors, at $1.50 the pair and up.

Santa Fe Society Notes

CERVANTES AND THE FIFTEEN CLUB.

Quarter of a century is a long life for a local literary club. But institutions and societies are long-lived in Santa Fe, especially if they are as deep-rooted in social traditions as is the Fifteen club, which, beginning with this fall, celebrates its twenty-fifth anniversary. To signalize the quarter-century of pleasant and earnest intellectual work, the club will give the entire year to the study of the Spanish renaissance, a period so intimately associated with the founding of Santa Fe and the development of the Spanish-American life in the Americas. In art, literature and architecture it was a glorious period and, transplanted to the western continent, it became endowed with a new vigor and developed tremendously. It is also the 300th anniversary of Cervantes, whose "Don Quixote" put a quietus upon feudalism and ushered in a new era. In the clamor over the 300th anniversary of the death of Shakespeare, the Fifteen club will not permit Cervantes' fame to be forgotten. In fact, Shakespeare and Cervantes are much nearer to our time than most people realize. They were both in their prime when the Palace of the Governors was built at Santa Fe, and neither had been born when Coronado camped at Pecos. Who can readily picture what an interesting program may be developed from a topic so intimately connected with the discovery and conquest of Spanish America, including our own southwest, that ranges from Columbus, Cortes and Pizarro to Coronado, Onate, De Vazquez, in art, the theme ranges from Velasquez to Muriillo. Then there are the poems of Calderon, the romances of Cervantes, and, to crown it all, the cathedrals of Spain, of South America, of Mexico and the mission churches of New Mexico. Surely a wide and glorious range. Perhaps, a Spanish tea on Guest Day, and a few other delectable incidents that will emphasize the Spanish atmosphere that still pervades this land of sunshine, will be added for full measure of a year's program that will top the twenty-four annual programs, great as they were, that have preceded. The club met Friday afternoon as the guests of Miss Massie, and the topic committee reported, its suggestion being accepted at the business meeting which followed the program. Mrs. L. H. Rapp presided. After the quotations, Mrs. Paul A. F. Walter presented a paper on "The Great Libraries of the World." Mrs. Rapp read "Twenty Minutes of Reality," from the Atlantic. The next meeting will be "Guest Day," with Mrs. L. F. Jones, Mrs. Thomas to preside.

AN ARTIST FROM AFAR.

"This is Italy!" exclaimed the first visitor to behold the water color exhibit by Mrs. Winslow Skinner, which was put up on Thursday evening in the historic reception room of the venerable Palace of the Governors. But only he who has lived in Italy can gauge the height, the breadth and feeling of such an exclamation. The palpitating sunlight, the glow of color, the very spirit of age, romance and beauty that hover over the churches, the highways and byways, all the way from the Campagna to Lake Garda, are here reflected in this series of pictures. Each hour the paintings seem to bring a new message and as the sun veers from the east to the west and lights up the landscapes from a different angle, one finds a new interpretation of glorious scenes that are familiar in song and story. Forgetting for a moment the consummate art of the painter, the visitor who takes the time to study the pictures closely—and they are worth it—will call up memories of Assisi, of Perugia, of Tivoli, of wayside shrines, of arched gateways and dim cloisters, of women carrying loads of hay upon their backs, and of quaint nooks and corners that almost remind one of southern California and of New Mexico. Then, as if to prove the oft-repeated prophecy, that southern California would some day be America's Italy, Mrs. Skinner has hung pictures of the missions of California. There are visions of San Juan Capistrano, of Carmel, of San Fernando, of Monterey, of San Gabriel and San Diego—a galaxy of architectural bits that show how close art, architecture and archaeology are allied and that any one of these must necessarily include the others. There is a lovely glimpse of Robert Louis Stevenson's house at Monterey and as if to demonstrate that Mrs. Skinner's art is all-embracing, there is a charming seascape, of the surf dashing high above the grim rocks of La Jolla.

It is difficult to decide which to admire most, and with each day each picture appears to be lovelier than the day before. The drawing and color are vigorous, almost bold. Water color is a more difficult medium for this sort of work than oil, but Mrs. Skinner overcomes the ordinary flatness of her medium by means of emphatic contrast, deep shadows, brilliant sunlight, until the picture seems to glow and the splashes of color are pleasing to the eye in themselves, even aside from the fact that the ensemble emphasizes the very poetry and beauty of the scene.

Most striking, perhaps, is the view of the Villa d'Este as seen through the long perspective of the sombre cypress walk. Right beneath it hangs a picture of the picturesque bridge between Perugia and Assisi, an effective landscape over which one lingers with real affection. Unusual and from the art standpoint, perhaps, the greatest is the painting showing part of the white wall of the St. Francis church of Assisi, with a green hill as background. But each one of the thirty pictures is worthy of extended description and comment. One reveals in deep purples, in luscious grape color, in cool blues, in the brilliance of the sunlight reflected by church and castle walls.

Mrs. Skinner may remain in Santa Fe all summer. She has spent most of her time in Europe. In Paris she was a pupil of the well-known master, Delecluse, and she has exhibited in art galleries and exhibits abroad as well as in New York and Los Angeles. At present three of her pictures hang in the 22nd annual exhibit of the Buffalo art gallery.

TOO SHORT.

Life is too short for any bitter feeling. Time is the best avenger if we wait. The years speed by, and on their wings bear healing.

We have no room for anything like hate. The solemn truth the low mounds seem revealing. That thick and fast about our feet are stealing— Life is too short.

RECEPTION FOR ARTISTS. Cards are out for a reception to the local artist colony under the auspices of the Santa Fe Woman's club, at the home of Judge and Mrs. Lorin C. Collins, on Tuesday afternoon, the regular meeting date of the club. The Santa Fe artist colony now includes Mr. and Mrs. Harwood, of Paris, France; Mrs. Winslow Skinner, of Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. Henderson and daughter, of Chicago; Miss Benson and mother, of Deming; K. M. Chapman, Carlos Vierra, Sheldon Parsons and daughter, Ben Hiesman, of Chicago, and others, while it has such visitors the past week as Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dunton and daughters, and Bert Phillips and son, Ralph, of the Taos art colony.

THE HUSHED VOICE.

What mother said—it didn't matter then, A loving word, perchance, and then again, When children's wrath came in our simple play, And little woes beset Youth's rosy way, Her sweetly gentle words dispelled the wrath, And coaxed the buds to bloom along our path; Her voice was sweet to greet the morning sun, And, sweeter still, when golden days were done, Her soft good-night that sent us, to our bed— It didn't matter then—what mother said.

It didn't matter then, but now she's gone

The world lacks all its sweetness, and, at dawn, The sunbeams, coming down from heaven's dome, But emphasize the loss from out the home; No kindly smiles to cheer the passing day, No mother-words to guide us on the way, No loving arms that wait but to enfold When world and all grow merciless and cold; The Kingdom there, I think, is made of such— What mother said! O, now 'twould mean so much!

—John D. Wells.

A PROMISING ART STUDENT.

The art committee of the Museum of New Mexico, consisting of Mrs. L. H. Rapp, who was chosen chairman; Miss Massie, K. M. Chapman, Carlos Vierra and the director of the museum, met for organization on Monday afternoon at the Palace of the Governors, and viewed the pictures of Karl Winter, a young art student, who gives such decided evidence of talent that the future seems to hold brilliant promise for him. There were two still-life paintings in oil which were exceedingly well done, showing good draughtsmanship and correct color sense. A poetic imagination and freedom of brush work are emphasized in a number of landscapes of mountains and forests. A camp scene at night is especially effective. An exhibit of the pictures will probably be made next week to signalize the opening of the new rooms of the New Mexico Camera club. The art committee of the museum was especially pleased that the first exhibit since its organization is such a meritorious one as that of Mrs. Skinner, hung on Thursday.

FOUR NOTABLE WEDDINGS.

The call to arms which came to the New Mexico national guard resulted in the wedding on Wednesday noon of Miss Jane Groves, one of Santa Fe's school teachers and daughter of Corporation Commissioner and Mrs. Matthew S. Groves, to Eugene A. Roberts, of Carlsbad. The young couple had been friends for years in Carlsbad and their wedding was planned for July. But the mobilization took drive, who is first lieutenant in the Carlsbad company. To the border, and before leaving he rushed up to Santa Fe, arriving Wednesday noon and leaving again right after the wedding. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. Z. McCollough, of the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Roberts is manager of the Public Utilities company, at Carlsbad, and is a graduate of the New Mexico Military Institute, at Roswell.

Rev. B. Z. McCollough also officiated at the wedding of Miss Helen Barbara Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Fischer, of Washington, D. C., to Robert Maxwell Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, of Santa Fe. The wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Sallie Blake, on Cathedral street, Miss Emma Fischer, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Scott left after the ceremony for La Junta, Colo., which will be their future home.

Monday morning, at the cathedral, Miss Marie Louise Romero, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clofies Romero, was married at the cathedral by Vicar General Antonio Fourcheu, to Thomas B. Rapkovich, county clerk of Torrance county. Col. Jose B. Sosa was best man and Mrs. Sosa, matron of honor. Miss Lucile Romero and Miss Marguerite Roach were flower girls. The Loretto academy chorus, with Misses Louise Jaramillo, Minnie Creamer and Lucy Knight as soloists, furnished the music. A reception and dinner at the Romero home, in this city, followed. Mr. and Mrs. Rapkovich went to Chicago and other eastern points on their wedding journey.
